The "Studierenden-Energiepreispauschalengesetz" came into force on 21. December 2022. According to this law, students are entitled to a one-time payment of 200 euros due to the increased energy costs. The precondition is that you were enrolled at a university on 1 December 2022 and had your place of residence or usual abode in Germany on the said date. You can apply for payment since 15 March 2023 (0.00 hrs) at www.einmalzahlung200.de. Please note that students who are enrolled at two or more universities and receive more than one access code can only submit one application.

You also need a BundID account and either the activated online ID function of your ID card or an ELSTER certificate.

You will receive your access code online, after logging into your study service account at campus.fh-zwickau.de/ on the start page under "Mein EPPSG-Berechtigungscodes / My EPPSG authorisation code".

You can apply for the one-time payment immediately if you have a BundID account and activated the online ID function or using your ELSTER certificate. If you do not have an electronic ID (online ID function, European eID, ELSTER certificate), please create a BundID account with a valid e-mail address. In this case, you will need the access code (see above), the BundID account and a PIN to apply.

You will likewise find the PIN in your personal Student Services account at campus.fh-zwickau.de/ directly after logging in on the start page in the "PIN-Brief für Energiepreispauschale / PIN letter for energy price flat rate" under "Bescheide / notifications".

You can find comprehensive information on the procedure, on activating the online ID function, on setting up a BundID account and on the application process at www.einmalzahlung200.de. Kindly note that you are only eligible to submit an application if you were a registered resident or had your usual place of abode in Germany on 1 December 2022. Regular attendance at a university in Germany alone does not constitute habitual residence in Germany if you have your place of residence abroad (cross-border commuter). A study stay abroad limited to a maximum of two semesters and an associated foreign residence is not detrimental, provided that you are still enrolled at your educational institution in Germany at the same time. In other words, in many cases, exchange students are also eligible to apply under the above-mentioned conditions.

If you have any problems with the application process, please first read the FAQ at www.einmalzahlung200.de/faq. If you have further questions, please contact the support for applicants at www.einmalzahlung200.de/kontakt. In the case of any technical problems, it is helpful to provide screenshots.

The Studentenwerk Dresden, as the responsible office in the state of Saxony, handles the application processing for students. If you have specific questions about these issues, please contact einmalzahlung200@studentenwerk-dresden.de. Information on data protection is available at <https://swdd.eu/dsepp>.

The most important information for students is also available at <https://www.studentenwerk-dresden.de/>.
